

2025 Healthtech Exploration Workshop

The Healthtech Exploration Workshop brings together interns working in health technology for two days of education and networking that will accelerate their professional development and enhance their internship experience. Participants will explore the medtech landscape, engage with Fogarty Innovation and other industry leaders, experience the Stanford Biodesign innovation process, and participate in 1:1 speed mentoring.

The workshop is specifically for college student interns from historically underrepresented and under-resourced groups. Developed in 2021, the program aims to encourage health technology companies to hire interns from underrepresented groups, help those companies deliver a robust learning experience, and build a supportive community that will help interns succeed in the future.

WHEN: July 10-11, 2025

WHERE: Redwood City, Calif.

COST: $499 per intern. DxD will provide meals and parking. Sponsoring companies must provide transportation and accommodations.

To learn more or enroll, complete this form or email Claudine Joseph. Enrollment is limited.

COMPANY INFO SESSION

Learn how the Healthtech Exploration Workshop will support your summer interns' growth and development at our info session Tuesday, March 25 @ noon PDT.

“

“Our interns loved the DxD Workshop Program last year and our ability to offer it to them made our internships more competitive.” – Renee Ryan, healthtech executive & innovator

“I took away a lot of life advice —from the importance of building a network to understanding that you don’t need to have a multiyear plan for the future to be successful. I also learned about the medtech industry and the process a company goes through to invent a technology and bring it to patients.” – Sara Gershfield, participant

”